EG sherd, later C2-first half C3

Decorated samian (arranged in the same order as the main catalogue)

- KW67 1/7 Dr 37 in the style of Julius I-Lupus of Rheinzabern. Both potters regularly used the ovolo (Ricken & Fischer 1963, E46) and rosette (O48), and both used large single medallions. The motif inside the medallion is not certainly identifiable. First half C3. (2 joining sherds)
- KW67 2/3 Dr 37, Central Gaul. Scroll over a space divided into two zones, a device regularly used by the Sacer group (eg Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 83, no 9, pl 87, no 20). Hadrianic-early Antonine. (Burnt)
- KW67 3/11 Dr 29, South Gaul. Upper zone straight wreath of triple leaves alternating with poppyheads at the top (as Hermet 1934, pl 48, no 18), but at the bottom the poppyhead is apparently replaced by a hollow motif, such as a spiral (eg pl 48, no 17). A Neronian date is likely.
- KW67 2/11 Decorated sherd, Central Gaul, with blurred five-beaded rosette: cf Rogers 1974, G279, assigned to X-6. Hadrianic-early Antonine.
- KW67 3/2 Dr 37, Central Gaul. The grass-tuft, Rogers 1974, L19, was used by potters of the Sacer group; the motifs with it here are probably animals. Hadrianic-early Antonine. (Burnt)
- KW67 3/12 Dr 29, South Gaul. Panel of large horizontal arrowhead motifs in the upper zone: cf Knorr 1919, Taf 64, G, stamped by Passienus. Neronian.
- KW67 3/16 Dr 37, South Gaul. Arranged in horizontal bands, including a scroll with part of a neatly modelled leaf. c AD 70-85.
- KW67 4/4 Dr 37 in the style of Drusus I (X-3) of Les Martres-de-Veyre. For his use of this motif as an ovolo, cf Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 12, no 142. c AD 100-125.
- KW68 8/A1 Dr 37 in the style of Primitivus IV of Rheinzabern, the only recorded user of this ovolo (Ricken & Fischer 1963, E41). The motifs beneath are not certainly identifiable. First half C3. (Burnt)
- KW68 8/A4 Dr 37, South Gaul. Shallow scroll with finely modelled leaves ^{and poppyheads} above a band of small roundels containing rosettes. The closeness of the design to Dr 29 bowls and the individual motifs - similar rosette roundels occur, for example, on stamped 29s of Aquitanus (Knorr 1952, Taf 4, E) suggest that this is an early example of form 37, c AD 65-80.
- KW68 9/A Pit 3 13 Dr 37, Les Martres-de-Veyre, with an ornament (Rogers 1974, U118) shared by X-13 (Donnaucus) and the Rosette Potter. c AD 100-125.
- Dr 37, Rheinzabern. The ovolo, Ricken & Fischer 1963, E11, was shared by several potters. Late C2-first half C3.
- KW68 9/A Pit 3 25 Dr 37, Central Gaul. The leopard, Oswald 1936-7 type 1562, is recorded for Cinnamus, and the warrior, type 188, is assigned to Cinnamus' style by Oswald. Cinnamus did use wide ovoid beads on occasion (eg Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 157, no 13), but not as wide as those here, which are close to the beaded column, Rogers 1974, P12 (assigned to an unknown Hadrianic potter). The fabric and slip would suggest an Antonine date. (Burnt; 5 joining sherds, with some from 9/10/A and 10/A 8)

- KW69 10/ Pit 3 100a Dr 37, Central Gaul. The ovolo is incomplete, but what survives matches with Rogers 1974, B208, shared by Docilis and Quintilianus-Laxtucissa. The rather flat beads do not match with the usual beads of these potters, however. Hadrianic-Antonine.
- Dr 37, probably East Gaul. Part of small figure, ?animal, at base. Later C2-first half C3. (Burnt)
- KW68 9/ A Pit 1 5 Dr 29, South Gaul. Crouching panther (probably Hermet 1934, pl 25, no 24) in upper zone. The central cordon is bordered by very fine beads or, perhaps, by the less usual ornament of a wavy line. Neronian.
- KW68 9/ A Pit 2 6 Dr 30, Central Gaul. The ovolo is probably Rogers 1974, B10, assigned to his potter P-1. Little of P-1's work is published; he has been found at Lezoux, so a Hadrianic-early Antonine date is likely. (Burnt; 2 sherds - 9/10 A below are probably the same vessel)
- KW68 9/ A Pit 2 8 Dr 37 in the style of Igocatus (X-4) of Les Martres-de-Veyre. The ovolo, astagalus and festoon are on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 18, no 225, the ovolo, festoon, border and crown motif on pl 19, no 237. The motif in the festoon is the vine scroll on pl 17, no 219. c AD 100-125. (3 joining sherds, some from 9/ A 25)
- KW69 10S/ Pit 1 Dr 37 in the style of X-12 (Ioenalis) of Les Martres-de-Veyre. For the beaded circle as ovolo, cf Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 40, no 461. c AD 100-125
- KW68 9/ A 1 Dr 30, South Gaul. Panel of massed leaf-tips: as Hermet 1934, pl 76, no 7. Neronian probably. (Slightly burnt)
- ~~KW68 9/ A 2 Dr 30, South Gaul. Panel of massed leaf-tips: as Hermet 1934, pl 76, no 7. Neronian probably. (Slightly burnt)~~
- KW68 9/ A 5 Dr 29, South Gaul. The hare is known from a stamped bowl of Iucundus (Knorr 1952, Taf 31, E), and the long leaf used here as a pendant is on a bowl which may be his work (Taf 31, C). c AD 65-80.
- KW68 9/ A 9 Dr 30 in the style of Cinnamus of Lezoux. He is recorded as using the tongs (Rogers 1974, U204); the eagle is on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 157, no 3, with a similar spiral, the coarse beads on pl 159, no 26, and the beaded ring on pl 162, no 61. The warrior, Oswald 1936-7 type 177, is recorded for the associated potters Paullus and Pugnus. The small leaf is not shown by Rogers. c AD 150-180. (6 sherds, some from 9/ A 13, 14, 9/10 A, 10/ A 3, 10E/ 3)
- KW68 9/ A 11 Dr 30 in the style of Doeccus of Lezoux. The heavy beads and figure are on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 147, no 6, with a similar double medallion; the small circle may be that on pl 149, no 28. c AD 165-200.
- KW68 9/10/ A Dr 37, Central Gaul. Heavy scrollery. Antonine.
- Dr 37, Central Gaul. Feet of running animal, probably a deer. Hadrianic-Antonine.
- Dr 37 in the style of Doeccus of Lezoux. Ovolo and heavy beads as Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 149, no 27. c AD 165-200.
- Dr 37 in the style of Iullinus of Lezoux. His ovolo and round beads, as Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 126, no 13; the astragalus is on pl 126, no 11. The motif beneath the border is not identifiable. c AD 160-190.

Dr 30, Central Gaul. The ovolo is probably Rogers 1974, B10, assigned to his potter P-1. Hadrianic-early Antonine, probably. (2 joining sherds, burnt; probably the same vessel as that in 9/ A Pit 2 6 above)

Dr 37, ^{probably by} Helenius of Rheinzabern. He used both the dog (Ricken & Fischer 1963, T147) and leaf (P75c) in a similar arrangement on Ludowici & Ricken 1948, Taf 177, no 10. First half C3. (Burnt)

³
K69 10W/ 5 Dr 37, East Gaul. Tip of ovolo, above probable scrollery: there is not sufficient of the decoration to suggest a potter. Later C2-mid C3.

³
K69 10W/ 5d Dr 30, South Gaul. The ovolo is incomplete, but may be one used by Albinus. Below is a saltire with poppyheads and four-beaded rosettes on tendrils. c AD 65-85.

³
K68 10/ A 8 Dr 29, South Gaul. Gadroons in lower zone. Neronian, probably.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. Blurred rosette, insufficiently clear to identify. Hadrianic-early Antonine.

Dr 30, Central Gaul. The heavy beads are characteristic of the Doecus-Casurius group. Mid-late Antonine.

³
K68 10/ A 11 Dr 29, South Gaul, Gadroons in lower zone. Neronian-early Flavian.

³
K68 10/ A 16 Dr 37, Central Gaul. Part of a vine leaf. Hadrianic-Antonine. (Burnt)

³
KW69 12/ 102b Dr 37, South Gaul. The formal leaf ornament was used by several Flavian potters, and the arrangement here, leaves alternating with running animals, was a common one (cf Hermet 1934, pls 67-8; the leaf is pl 68, no 29). The motif in the lower frieze may be the antlers of a stag. c AD 75-90.

³
KW77 16/ 9 Dr 29, ^{probably} South Gaul. The sharply barbed arrowhead motif occurs in similar groups on stamped bowls of Meddillus (eg Museum of London, Walbrook excavation ref 221/3). c AD 70-85.

Dr 29, South Gaul. There are links with such potters as Passienus, who used the lance-shaped leaf in horizontal arrangements, a similar central wreath and panel of diagonal wavy lines and arrowheads, and the long triple leaf (Knorr 1919, Taf 63, D; Taf 64, F; Knorr 1952, Taf 49, F), and Iucundus, who stamped bowls with the lance-shaped leaf, panels of diagonal wavy lines and arrowheads, and perhaps ^{used} the long triple leaf (Knorr 1952, Taf 31, C, D). A date c 65-80 is likely.

³
KW77 16/ 90 Dr 30, South Gaul. Well-defined single-bordered ovolo with rosette terminal. Probably Neronian.

³
KW72 14/ Well III Dr 37 in the style of Paternus II of Lezoux. The bear is on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 106, no 22; the other foot may be the leopard on pl 106, no 24. c AD 160-190.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. Possibly part of a leaf. Antonine, probably. (Rheinzabern)

Dr 37, East Gaul. Ovolo Ricken & Fischer 1963, E46, used by potters of the Julius I-Lupus-Reginus II group. First half C3.

Dr 45, Trier, with lion-head spout: cf Bird 1986, no 2.214. First half C3.

Dr 37, South Gaul. Broken ovolo. Flavian.

Dr 37, South Gaul. Trident-tongued ovolo, incomplete but probably one used by M Crestio and Crucuro. c AD 75-95.

Dr 37 in the style of Cinnamus of Lezoux. The ovolo and leaf-tips are on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 163, no 71. The animal may be a bear. c AD 150-180.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. The ovolo is too blurred to identify. Hadrianic-Antonine.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. Scrollery and medallion. Antonine, probably.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. Small animals, probably in the background of a free-style bowl. The deer may be one used by Paternus II (Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 106, no 22); the other animal is probably a small hound. Antonine.

Dr 37, Central Gaul. The ovolo is broken but is probably Rogers 1974, B244, shared by several potters. Hadrianic-early Antonine.

Dr 37, Trier. The basal band of corded beads was used by potters of Werkstatt II (Fölzer 1913, Taf 20, nos 6, 12, 15), and a similar band was later used by Dubitatus (Gard 1937, Taf 20, 5-6a). Later C2-early C3, probably; the footring is not notably late in style.

Dr 37, Rheinzabern. The rosette, Ricken & Fischer 1963, 047, was shared by several potters. Later C2-first half C3.

KW69 Ω U/S Dr 37, Central Gaul. Feet of small human figure, not certainly identifiable. Early C2.

Dr 30 in the style of Doecous of Lezoux. Ovolo, beads and festoon as Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 149, no 32. The motif in the festoon is ~~probably the stag on pl 149~~, no 33. c AD 165-200. (Very abraded)

Dr 37, East Gaul. The ovolo is probably Fölzer 1913, Taf 25, no 124, which was used by Sacer of La Madeleine (Haalebos 1977, Taf 41, no 200, and Fölzer Taf 1, no 38, both with the C.C.SACRI stamp). Hadrianic-early Antonine. (2 sherds, one from Ω $\frac{3}{V}$).

Dr 37, Rheinzabern. The cupid, Ricken & Fischer 1963, M126, and doubled medallion (K20 or 20a) were shared by Comitialis VI and Belsus III, but their use with tendrils as here occurs only on Comitialis' bowls (Ludowici & Ricken 1948, Taf 106, no 10, Taf 107, no 6). Later C2-first half C3.

KW69 Ω E/M Dr 30, Central Gaul, with large beads characteristic of the Doecous-Casurius group. mid-late Antonine.

KW68 $\frac{2}{B}$ 5 Dr 37 in the style of Geminus of Lezoux. The ovolo, wavy line and triple leaf are on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 66, no 20. c AD 125-145.

KW68 $\frac{3}{B}$ 2 Pl Dr 37 in the style of X-13 (Donnaucus) of Les Martres-de-Veyre. The little cupid is on Stanfield & Simpson 1958, pl 49, no 577, the other figure is probably that on pl 44, no 511. The motif at each side of the cupid may be a small duck; that above is the panther on pl 45, no 518. c AD 100-125. (Slightly burnt, worn inside. The detail is rather blurred, probably from the finishing)

KW68 $\frac{3}{B}$ 6 Dr 29, South Gaul. Small column supporting festoons in the upper zone. • Neronian, probably.

KW68 4 B 12 Dr 30 probably, Central Gaul. Possible foliage motif. Hadrianic-Antonine.
